Summary of Information

The target vessel is currently located at 79 W 19 20 N, between Jamaica and Grand Cayman Island. It is traveling in a northwesterly direction. The target is carrying contraband. However, the narcotics are not a conventional type of cocaine; it is solid, dense and tightly packed. The contraband is associated with long tubes which resemble the type used for storing navigational charts. These tubes, in turn, are hidden within a cavity in the bow area of the vessel.

The contraband is to be transferred to another vessel at sea south of the Terrebonne Bay area of southern Louisiana (between 90 and 91 degrees W and 28 and 29 degrees N). This will take place during the Memorial Day period (+/- 2 days). The vessel receiving the cargo resembles a small fishing trawler or "shrimper". Its nets are frayed and the characters "V, T, 7, 0 and 3" are associated with this boat in some way. There is a tall, heavy-set man with a heavy black beard and untucked flannel shirt on the pick-up boat. The pick-up time is early morning and it is gray and foggy. The pick-up boat will come from an area which is predominately tidal estuary.

The destination of the contraband is a location associated with the name of Flambeau or Flanareaux.

The tubes which are associated with the contraband are 3 1/2 to 4 inches in diameter and 3 feet long. They resemble navigational chart tubes. These tubes are both stacked vertically and horizontally a cavity in the bow of the vessel. The tubes rather resemble a bangalore torpedo. The cavity occurs behind the bow-side wall of a small room or where a passageway widens a bit. There is a triangular shaped wooden object which sits center and attached to this wall. Cushion covered benches abut on either side of this wooden object. There are windows or portholes above some of the benches (see diagram).

The wooden object is reddish with tan trim. It is approximately 3.5 to 4 feet tall and 18 inches on a side. A small railing runs along the top, rear edge. The entire object is well constructed and very polished. There are 3 black wooden rails attached to, or 3 slots cut into, each of the two front sides (see diagram). This triangular wooden object has something to do with the access to something; possibly the bow cavity.
